"This edition consists of two hundred and fifty seven copies of which this is no. 251. (Signed, Unwin brothers.) The plates were printed from original wood-blocks of the late fifteenth century, and the text from Caxton type; the paper was made by hand, of material and color to imitate that used in the fifteenth century, and the binding is appropriate to that period. The whole imitates a block-book and was issued as a volume to commemorate the Caxton celebration of 1877, and the Wycliffe quincentenary, of Lutod.

"The originals ... which have been used for the reductions which illustrate this volume were exhibited, together with a volume of impressions at the Caxton celebration held in London in 1877. ... This ... series of original blocks were purchased about thirty years since at Nuremberg ... They cannot be recognized as belonging to any printed book, and the artist's mark, which appears on the 57th plate, is unknown to any bibliographer. It is ... probable that the blocks were thrown aside and never used ... (in a lapse of nearly four centuries) ... These blocks were used in the production of 'A new Biblia pauperum' ... of which 275 copies were issued (in 1877)."—Note by the printers.

Humphreys, Daniel, 1740-1807.

The Bible needs no apology: or, Watson's system of religion refuted; and the advocate proved an unfaithful one, by the Bible itself: of which a short view is given, one which itself gives, a short answer to Paine: in four letters, on Watson's Apology for the Bible, and Paine's Age of reason, part the second. A blazing star scene in the west at Totneis in Devonshire, on the fourteenth of this instant November, 1642. Wherein is manifested how Master Ralph Ashley, a devious cavalier, attempted to ravish a young virgin, the daughter of Mr. Adam Fisher, inhabiting near the said town. Also how at that instant, a fearful comet appeared, to the terror and amazement of all the country thereabouts. Likewise declaring how persisting in his damnable attempt, was struck with a flaming sword, which issued from the comet, so that he dyed

The bloody tenent ...

1644. (Card 2)

The "Scriptures and reasons" (p. 1-4) is a part—the 6th-10th chapters—of a work printed in 1620, entitled "A most humble supplication of the Kings Majesty's loyal subjects, ready to testify all civil obedience ... signed by 'Four Majesty's most subjects unjustly called Anabaptists', a work attributed to John Murton. The "Model of church and civil power" "examined and answered" in the last fifty-six chapters, is probably not that ascribed to Richard Mather, but an earlier one, never printed, drawn up in accordance with the Act of the General court, March 4, 1634, by the elders and brethren of every church within this jurisdiction. cf. The bloody tenent of persecution, ed. by S. L. Caldwell, Providence, 1907; and O. S. Strass, Roger Williams, New York, 1904.
